How to Study for a Test or Quiz and do Well
Mrs. Antoniou-Science

1. Never wait till the last minute to study for a test, quiz, or final exam.
2. Divide the time available to you equally with the amount of material to be studied.
3. The night before the test day, review and concentrate your attention on weak points.
4. If you are studying for a vocabulary (spelling and/or definitions) test, learn the spelling of the words first, by writing each word down several times.
5. Have someone read the words to you, while you practice writing them.
6. Study the definitions.
7. Have someone read the word and you tell them the definition orally.
8. Have someone read the definitions and you write the words.
9. Study a few of the words every night rather than studying them all at once.
10. You may find that a different method, like flash cards works better for you. Do what is more comfortable. However, your test scores will tell you if your method works.

GOOD LUCK!!!
